

ABSTRACT

A package of color photographic film exhibiting enhanced storage stability, wherein a strip of film is wound on a spool, and packed in a metallic film magazine which provides light shielding, and then the packed film is hermetically sealed in a moisture proof envelope, not employing a plastic canister. In this package of color photographic film, contained is the color photographic film having a subbing layer between a substrate and a photographic constitution layer, which subbing layer has a specific dry layer thickness and contains gelatin as the main content of a binder.